PELOSI CELEBRATES MAJOR VICTORY IN CONGRESS BY IMPEACHING THE PRESIDENT!!

The impeachment agenda of Democrats is a political coup. Republicans legitimize false, fraudulent, Pelosi impeachment of President Trump, so she can take over the White House...Bah Humbug.

THE SPIRITUAL BATTLE RAGES!

Intercessors with insight answer the call!

Pelosi's ability to impeach President Trump is based on a lie of an anonymous Saul Alinsky liberal. By describing him as a protected whistle blower was actually a spy planted in the White House to report to Adam Schiff that President Trump needed to be impeached. This lie prevailed and is now empowering Pelosi to pursue her attempt to remove President Trump in order to enable her to become President and Adam Schiff, Vice President.

Pelosi trashes the truth and our constitution in plain sight. All Dems stand shoulder to shoulder with a modern day Jezebel. She slanders all who do not support her coup. She calls Senator Mitch McConnell, Moscow Mitch. Liberals applaud. Republicans allowed lie to live and Pelosi believes she will become President this year and that she has the power to deceive her way all the way to the White House. She is laughing at Republicans, the media, and 62 million of us that voted for the President. She is acting and speaking as an "equal" to the president.

Ezekiel 22:1-31 And the word of the LORD came to me, saying, "And you, son of man, will you judge, will you judge the bloody city? Then declare to her all her abominations. You shall say, Thus says the Lord GOD: A city that sheds blood in her midst, so that her time may come, and that makes idols to defile herself! and defiled by the idols that you have made, and you have brought your days near the appointed time of your years has come. Therefore I have made you a reproach to the nations, and a mockery to all the countries. Those who are near and those who are far from you will mock you; your name is defiled; you are full of tumult.

Ezekiel 22:31 Therefore I have poured out my indignation upon them. I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath. I have returned their way upon their heads, declares the Lord GOD." Decree above verses over following photos. Anoint them with oil. Ask God to bring justice upon them now. Ask God to remove all charges of impeachment fraud from all records. Many believe they should be removed from office for spying on American citizens. They act like Russia interfered with our elections, when they are the ones trying to interfere with our 2020 elections. House Democratic Caucus Chairman Hakeem Jeffries, a New York Democrat Rep. Hakeem Jeffries

House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff, a California Democrat Rep. Adam Schiff

As chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, Rep. Adam Schiff, a California

Democrat, has had a leading role in the House impeachment investigation into Donald Trump President and the Ukraine scandal. Schiff will serve as lead impeachment manager, Pelosi announced Wednesday. At the outset of the inquiry, the House Intelligence Committee, along with the Foreign Affairs and Oversight committees, held a series of closed-door depositions of current and former administration officials. Schiff later presided over public hearings in the Intel committee where he served as a key voice in the effort by House Democrats to outline the case against the President.

Rep. Hakeem Jeffries of New York is viewed as a rising star among House Democrats and is already a member of leadership. Jeffries was elected as House Democratic caucus chairman after Democrats won back the House majority in the 2018 midterm elections and currently serves in that post. He is a close ally of Speaker Pelosi's as well as a member of the House Judiciary committee. Committee on House Administration Chairwoman Zoe Lofgren, a California Democrat Rep. Zoe Lofgren

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerry Nadler, a New York Democrat Rep. Jerry Nadler

Rep. Jerry Nadler, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a New York Democrat, has also been a central player in the House impeachment fight. Nadler was at the helm of the Judiciary Committee as it oversaw the drafting of the two articles of impeachment against Trump, abuse of power and obstruction of Congress. The panel debated and approved the articles on two party-line votes, sending them to the House floor. Impeachment hearings in the Judiciary and Intelligence committees put Nadler and Schiff

Rep. Zoe Lofgren is a California Democrat who sits on the Judiciary Committee. Lofgren is in a unique position as the only lawmaker to have worked on three congressional impeachment probes, experiences that give her institutional knowledge when it comes to impeachment fights. Lofgren helped draft an article of impeachment against President Richard Nixon as a congressional staffer and served on the House Judiciary Committee during President Bill Clinton's impeachment. She has said that she believes Trump's conduct involving Ukraine "is more serious" than the Watergate scandal.

Rep. Val Demings,

Rep. Val Demings

Rep. Val Demings, a Florida Democrat, is a member of both the House Judiciary and Intelligence committees, giving her a front row seat to congressional action throughout the House impeachment push. Deming's has a background in law enforcement and is the former chief of the Orlando Police Department. She has invoked that experience in speaking about the impeachment fight, saying in December, "I've enforced the laws and now I write the laws, and I know that nobody is above the law."

Rep. Jason Crow, a Democrat from Colorado
Rep. Jason Crow

Rep. Jason Crow is a freshman Democrat from Colorado who defeated a Republican incumbent in 2018. He's a former lawyer and US Army ranger who served in Iraq and Afghanistan. He is not a member of the congressional committees that led the impeachment of the President, which makes him a bit of a surprise pick for Pelosi. Crow serves on the House Armed Services and Small Business Committees.

Rep. Sylvia Garcia, a Democrat from Texas
Rep. Sylvia Garcia of Texas

Rep. Sylvia Garcia is a freshman Democrat from Texas who serves on the House Judiciary Committee. She was the presiding judge of Houston's municipal court system and a member in the Texas state Senate before being elected to Congress. This story has been updated with additional developments Wednesday.

SPIRITUAL DIRECTIONS:

Stand In The Gap

Ezekiel 13:5 You have not gone up into the breaches, or built up a wall for the house of Israel, that it might stand in battle in the day of the LORD.

Ezekiel 22:30-31

And I sought for a man among them who should build up the wall and stand in the breach before me for the land, that I should not destroy it, but I found none.

Isaiah 59:16 He saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no one to intercede;

Ezekiel 22:9 ESV 7 helpful votes There are men in you who slander to shed blood, and people in you who eat on the mountains; they commit lewdness in your midst.

Isaiah 62:6-7 On your walls, O Jerusalem, I have set watchmen; all the day and all the night they shall never be silent. You who put the LORD in remembrance, take no rest, and give him no rest until he establishes Jerusalem and makes it a praise in the earth.

Mark Levin, on Sean Hannity show:

"It's your duty to uphold the Constitution... not aid and abet" Democrats' unconstitutional impeachment efforts, Constitutional scholar and conservative commentator Mark Levin told five Republican senators threatening to support Democrats' demands for witnesses in the Senate impeachment trial.

Appearing on Fox News' "Hannity" Thursday, Levin directly addressed five Senate Republicans:

- Sen. Mitt Romney (R-Utah)
- Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine)
- Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-Alaska)
- Sen. Cory Gardner (R-Colorado)
- Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN)
- Levin said Democrats are destroying the Constitution – and that these five senators have a duty to put an end to Democrats' disgraceful impeachment efforts and demands for additional witnesses that it was the House's job to call:

“Now, something funny about these two articles of impeachment: there’s no Constitutional violation, there’s no statutory violation, there’s no violation of a federal court order. This is why they keep throwing up smoke.

“And, I want to tell these five Republicans in the Senate – the weak links in the chain – Romney, Collins, Murkowski, Gardner...Alexander. Let me tell you something: you have a duty to uphold the Constitution. What the House of Representatives has done here is destroy the Constitution.

“It’s your job to fix it. It’s your job to stop them – not aid and abet, by calling witnesses that the Democrats want.

“No! No witnesses! This should be dismissed; this is a disgrace!

“That’s it.”

“If Donald Trump Broke the Law, then So Did Joe Biden,” Levin said, referencing the threat Biden made as vice president to withhold Congressionally-authorized funds if the Ukraine didn’t fire a prosecutor investigating a company employing his son, Hunter.

TRAITORS IN THE SENATE

They prefer Pelosi as President instead of President Trump Pray for any payoff from Pelosi or Soros paid to them to remove President Trump from office. This, if happened, is a crime! ESPIONAGE! Five senators to watch on impeachment. Currently, the Senate seems unlikely to muster the two-thirds majority needed to remove President Trump from office. But two groups of Republicans are worth watching to see how sentiment stands.

J. Scott Applewhite/AP

The impeachment saga presents a difficult tightrope walk for GOP senators who are facing tough reelection races, including Republican Sen. Cory Gardner of Colorado “I’m a potential juror,” said Sen. Lamar Alexander, R-Tenn., on Wednesday, just before he hopped into an elevator. “We’re just going to have to see if it comes to trial,” said Sen. Joni Ernst, R-Iowa, as she stepped into a private Senate room.

But the subject of impeachment is quite probably coming to all senators of both parties, whether they look forward to it or not. The developments in the House suggest the chamber is hurtling toward an impeachment vote. The action would then shift to the Republican-led Senate, which ultimately gets to decide whether or not to remove the president from office.

Lamar Alexander

Senator Alexander’s decision to retire in 2020 after nearly two decades in the Senate was met with a slew of stories lamenting the loss of yet another of Capitol Hill’s “old guard” – lawmakers with reputations for reaching across the aisle. An institutionalist who started his career during the Watergate years under Senator Howard Baker, a fellow Tennessee Republican, he’s one of the few senators who has a relationship with Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., and Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y. Both paid him tribute on the Senate floor when he announced his pending retirement. As chair of the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, he has worked with ranking member Patty Murray, D-Wash., on legislation meant to lower the cost of health care.

Mr. Alexander also hasn’t balked at criticizing the president. He denounced Mr. Trump’s recent use of the term “lynching” to describe impeachment, as well as the decision to pull troops out of Syria. He was also one of only 11 Republicans to support a resolution rebuffing Mr. Trump for using the National Emergency Act to secure funds for his border wall without congressional approval.

That said, FiveThirtyEight’s tracker finds Mr. Alexander votes in line with Mr. Trump about 90% of the time. He showed his support for the president by joining a small group of Republican senators at a lunch last Thursday at the Oval Office. The next day, Mr. Alexander signed on to a resolution, introduced by the majority leader, Sen. McConnell, and South Carolina Sen. Lindsey Graham, condemning the House inquiry. Mr. Alexander’s position on impeachment thus far has been measured.

"I'm a potential juror, so I'm going to wait until I hear all the arguments and all the evidence before I have anything to say about it," he says.

Richard Burr

These days, Senator Burr is best known as chair of the Senate Intelligence Committee, which for two-and-a-half years has been investigating Russian meddling in the 2016 elections. He and his Democratic vice chair, Sen. Mark Warner of Virginia, have been lauded for their quiet, bipartisan efforts, which recently involved the release of the second of five reports drawn from testimonies from more than 200 witnesses – including the president's eldest son, Donald Trump, Jr. "We've got a very productive working relationship," Senator Warner says. "We don't always agree, but when we disagree we usually try to work it out in private." Republican Sen. Richard Burr of North Carolina, shown here in a Jan. 29, 2019 photo, is best known as chair of the Senate Intelligence Committee, which for two-and-a-half years has been investigating Russian meddling in the 2016 elections.

Susan Collins A moderate from Maine, Senator Collins has been smarting ever since she voted to confirm Justice Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court a year ago. Since Senator Collins cast her decisive vote, her approval rating has plummeted and a Democratic challenger has raised millions in a bid to unseat the four-term senator in next year's election. Some political observers say Ms. Collins' vote on impeachment could similarly spell disaster for her reelection chances, in either direction. Thus far, she has tried to walk a fine line. She wouldn't sign the Senate resolution condemning House Democrats' "closed-door" impeachment proceedings, but she's also stayed mum when reporters have asked how she would vote in a potential Senate trial.

Cory Gardner

Senator Gardner has struggled to address impeachment, and no wonder: He's a Republican running for his first reelection in a state that went to Hillary Clinton in 2016, and where Mr. Trump's approval rating has been on a steady decline since he took office. Mr. Gardner's own poll numbers haven't been doing so great. Democrats have made his seat their top Senate target in 2020, and he's one of four Republican senators that are the subject of new attack ads by the Democratic group Need to Impeach. Still, he's been a vocal critic of the House investigation, calling it a partisan exercise, and he quickly signed on to the resolution attacking the inquiry.

Mitt Romney Senator Romney has disapproved of Mr. Trump since 2016, when he warned his party against nominating "The Donald." When the news broke about the now-famous July 25 call, Mr. Romney described Mr. Trump's interaction with Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy as "deeply troubling." Then he rebuked Mr. Trump for publicly asking Ukraine and China to investigate former Vice President Joe Biden's family, which led the president to take to Twitter to call him "pompous" and "a fool." Republican Sen. Mitt Romney of Utah, shown here in an Oct. 30, 2019 photo, has become President Donald Trump's most vocal Republican critic in the chamber. Now Senator Romney is widely viewed as Mr. Trump's strongest Republican critic in the Senate. His state is primarily what lets him do that: Utah may be one of the reddest states in the nation, but Utah Republicans are much less enamored of the president than their GOP counterparts in most other states. Fifty-five percent of Utah voters overall disapprove of the president, according to a recent Utah Political Trends survey, for instance. By comparison, in next-door Wyoming, which is also heavily Republican, Trump's disapproval number hovers around 40 percent.
